Introduction – from our CEO

Collaboration is key to tackling the complex social and environmental challenges of our time. This is the concept on which the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals are based – a global partnership between governments, NGOs, businesses and individuals in the cause of ending poverty, protecting our planet, and ensuring prosperity for all.

At WPP, we aim to be active participants in this global effort. Communication is a powerful tool that can help to create positive change. We want to use our expertise and the skills of our people to support and promote progress on the goals. One of the most important ways we can contribute is through our pro bono work.

Our companies have a long history of pro bono partnership, providing professional communications services for little or no fee, to organisations working in areas such as the environment, human rights and anti-poverty. These partnerships harness the power of communications to inspire, inform and positively influence behaviour. This work makes a contribution to addressing many of the themes covered by the global goals.

I'm pleased to share with you a selection of recent pro bono work. Each campaign is different but all are important, impactful and inspiring. I'd like to thank our people for sharing their time and expertise with our pro bono partners. Their creativity and insight really does make a difference.

About our pro bono work

Through our pro bono work we support organisations working in six areas – health, education, local communities, human rights, the environment and the arts.

Our companies select their own pro bono partners, often reflecting the priorities or interests of their employees. These pro bono projects range from long-term partnerships to small-scale and one-off campaigns.

In some cases, WPP the parent company, plays a role in coordinating multi-company and global pro bono projects. A recent example is our Common Ground project tackling gender equality, which is profiled in our Sustainability Report.

Companies in all our disciplines undertake pro bono work, including advertising, research and insight, public relations and media buying. This book focuses on work by our advertising and design companies, with examples of pro bono research and public relations campaigns included in our Sustainability Report.

For more information on our social investment see the Sustainability Report, available online at wpp.com/sustainability

UN Sustainable Development Goals

Our agencies support the UNSDGs through their work with NGOs active in areas such as health, education, equality and the environment. In this book we have indicated where our pro bono campaigns align with the UNSDGs.

Performance in 2016

Our pro bono work was worth £12.5 in 2016 (2015: £13.5 million). We also made cash donations to charities of £7 million, resulting in a social investment worth £19.5 (2015: £19.4 million). This is equivalent to 1.03% of reported profit before tax.

WPP media agencies negotiated free media space worth £22.8 million on behalf of pro bono clients (2015: £20.8 million), making a total social contribution of £42.3 million (2015: £40.3 million).

The value of our social investment (pro bono work and charitable donations) increased by 0.5% on the previous year.

Wider impacts

Pro bono work can be worth more than an equivalent cash donation because it enables charities to raise awareness, increase donations, recruit members, impact behaviour and achieve campaign goals. We have conducted research to quantify this wider impact. This shows that our pro bono work in 2016, created wider social benefits worth £228 million to society. This includes for example, the impact of charities being able to improve health and well-being in communities.

Pro bono contributions

£m

WPP companies undertook pro bono work worth £12.5 million in 2016. This is down 7% on 2015.

Charitable contributions

Campaign:
The Last Word

WPP companies:
Geometry Global and Ogilvy & Mather Hong Kong
Client: WWF

In China, 7 out of 10 people do not realise that you have to kill an elephant to take its ivory. Perhaps because the Chinese word for ivory literally translates to “elephant tooth”, leading people to believe that tusk removal is harmless. Geometry Global and Ogilvy & Mather Hong Kong worked with linguistic experts and the public to create a new Chinese character for ivory which accurately portrays the nature of ivory extraction. The campaign website invited people to submit their characters and sign a petition to ban the ivory trade.

Results and Awards:

- ★ 70,000 people signed the petition.
- ★ 8,000 characters submitted.
- ★ Ivory trade to be phased out in Hong Kong by 2021.
- ★ Spikes Asia Awards 2016: 2 Silvers.
- ★ Marketing PR Awards: Gold.
- ★ PMAA Dragons of Asia: Best in Asia, Best in Hong Kong, 1 Gold, 1 Silver, 1 Bronze.

Wildlife

Campaign:
We Are All Wildlife

WPP company:
john st. Toronto
Client: WWF

This campaign highlights how all living organisms work hard to create life and yet we spend little effort protecting the environment needed for life to survive on this planet – we are all wildlife and all in need of protection.

Results and Awards:

- ★ 30m people reached, 470,000 likes, 122,000 shares and 13,000 comments on Facebook.
- ★ In the first month following the launch, WWF Canada received a 25% year-over-year increase in one-time donations.
- ★ Applied Arts Advertising Award: 7 categories.

Campaign:
Behind the Leather

WPP company:
Ogilvy & Mather Bangkok
Client: People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals (PETA)

Ogilvy & Mather Bangkok teamed up with PETA to launch Behind the Leather – a campaign to make people think of the animal suffering involved in making popular fashion items. A pop-up store called The Leather Work was opened in a busy Bangkok shopping mall and filled with purses, shoes, jackets and accessories made of exotic hides. Customers browsing the store were quickly confronted with the gruesome truth behind each item.

Results and Awards:

- ★ 136m impressions.
- ★ 42m views in 12 days.
- ★ 800,000 social media interactions.
- ★ $22m in free media.
- ★ 87% of shoppers changed their mind to buying leather goods.
- ★ Cannes Lions 2016:
3 Golds, 1 Silver, 1 Bronze.

Campaign:
Microplastics

WPP company:
Bold Ogilvy & Mather Athens
Client: Mediterranean SOS Network (MEDSOS)

Bold Ogilvy & Mather Athens created this TV, radio, print and outdoor ad campaign to increase participation in the annual beach clean-ups organised by MEDSOS. It also helps to educate the public on the environmental harm of microplastics, which can cause poisoning and genetic disruption to marine life, and potentially in humans.

Results:

- ★ 13,000 volunteers joined the annual clean-up.
- ★ €54,000 in free media.
- ★ 7m views.

Campaign:
Organs

WPP companies:
Y&R São Paulo and
Y&R London
Client: Gabriel

Y&R São Paulo and Y&R London created three posters for the non-profit organisation, Gabriel. The striking visuals deliver a clear message: if you don't donate your organs they are simply going to waste. The campaign was also shared on social media.

Results:

- ★ 1m increase in the number of registered donors.
- ★ 2,000 shares on social media.

Campaign:
Manboobs

WPP company:
DAVID Buenos Aires
Client: Movimiento Ayuda
Cáncer de Mama
(MACMA)

DAVID Buenos Aires' campaign for the Movimiento Ayuda Cáncer de Mama (MACMA) shows women how to do a self-examination to detect early breast cancer. The breast check video features an overweight male to highlight the hypocrisy of social media censorship of female breasts.

Results and Awards:

- ★ 48m views in the first week.
- ★ 193m media impressions.
- ★ €17m in free media.
- ★ 20,000 new followers joined the MACMA website on launch day.

Campaign:
Blood Banking

WPP company:
J. Walter Thompson
Bangalore
Client: Indian
Red Cross Society

According to the World Health Organization there is a shortage of over 3 million blood units in India. J. Walter Thompson India partnered with the Red Cross Society to launch the world's first savings account for blood. The initiative enables people to save their blood in a bank, just as they would save their money. An app allows donors to keep track of the blood they save, withdraw it when they need it or transfer it to someone else in need.

Results and Awards:

- ★ 3m media impressions.
- ★ 152,000 people registered and 132,000 units of blood were collected in the first 30 days.

Paper Glasses

WPP company:
Grey Mexico
Client: Save the Children

An estimated 75% of school dropouts in Mexico are related to visual impairment. The problem is worse in remote areas where access to adequate eye healthcare is limited. Grey Mexico created a pair of paper glasses with a series of pinhole sized perforations and distributed them to children through a school guide. Paper Glasses improves clarity of vision of people with refractive errors allowing children to identify any issues with their vision and seek medical help.

Results and Awards:

- ★ 3m children reached.
- ★ Project to expand to 120 other countries.
- ★ Cannes Lions 2016: 2 Golds, 1 Silver, 1 Bronze.

Campaign:
Donor Cars

WPP company:
J. Walter Thompson
Buenos Aires
Client: Cucaiba and UTMO

There are thousands of people on the organ waiting list in Argentina, but in 2016 there were only 108 donors. J. Walter Thompson Buenos Aires along with Cucaiba and UTMO took working parts from cars found in scrapyards and gave them to taxis creating 'Donor Cars'. Passengers in these taxis could find out more about organ donation and register on the spot. If they spread the message on social media their ride was free.

Results and Awards:

- ★ 350% increase in the number of registered donors compared to 2015.
- ★ SOL Awards 2016: Silver and Bronze.
